The first site it explores is the continuum of space that building rooms are connected to urban rooms. The second site it investigates is perception and experience. Architecture can be understood in two features of: the continuity of the matter-forms perceived by the senses and the continuum of the spatial forms experienced by the sequential movements.

evolutionary fashion rather than as singular revolutionary events. Michelangelo's magnificent design for the Campidoglio in Rome, for example, took inherited circumstances and worked with them to produce magic. The extraordinary angle between the flanking buildings and the Palazzo del Senatore was, at least in part, extant on the site when Michelangelo began his work in 1538.
