Carb counting tips: Avoiding guesswork | Diabetes UK

Carbohydrates (carbs) are in foods like: potatoes, rice, bread and pasta (starches) milk, fruit and honey (sugars) Knowing how many carbs you're eating and drinking helps you manage your blood glucose levels by matching your insulin dose to the amount of carbs in your meals and snacks. This means you do not have to inject and eat at the same time every day (fixed dose), so your treatment is more flexible.
